Utility name:
HASHCOMP.EXE version 1.0.0

Purpose:
Computes the MD5 or SHA256 hash of either a string or a file.

Author:
Bill Chaison, BC.Soft@yahoo.com, http://chaison.freewebpage.org

Development environment:
MS Visual C++ 6.0, console application, 643 lines of code.

License and terms of use:
This program is provided as freeware. It may be used by any individual or organization for any lawful purpose free of charge. This program may not be resold, nor may it be bundled or repackaged with any application or compilation that will be exchanged for profit. This program does not contain malicious code or surreptitious features. This program is made available as-is and users of it are not entitled to product support. The author will not be held liable for any damages resulting from the use of this program.

Example applications:
File integrity verification, chain of custody, credential storage and verification, etc.

Instructions:
To get help with the command line arguments, open a shell and execute the program without parameters.